The Needles are detached blocks of chalk situated off the western extremity of the Isle of Wight. Constant changes are taking place in their formation, new masses detaching themselves and others falling away; a notable rock, Lot's Wife, vanished in 1764. On the outermost is erected a lighthouse, 80 feet high, possessing an intermittent red and white light, visible for 14 miles.

I am afraid I
don't think much
of Shanklin, still
hanging in to be sure
we are nearly fed
up with it.

Kind regards from both
Edmund & I.
